WHAT WE DO

Feed Louisville meets the basic human needs of our houseless community while working to remove the barriers to housing. We take care of hunger and other emergency needs first – no questions asked – and then we work to move folks toward permanent housing.

Our model is built around three key components: street outreach, food rescue, and housing navigation.

WHO WE ARE

What started as a conversation during the onset of the COVID-19 pandemic has transformed into a full-service support organization for our houseless community. Founded by Chef Rhona Kamar and Donny Greene, a seasoned outreach worker, Feed Louisville has grown into a network of chefs, restaurants, farmers, social workers, social agency partners and countless volunteers who work together to address the humanitarian crisis of hunger and homelessness in Louisville.

OUTREACH

Focusing on harm reduction and building trust is at the heart of the work of our street outreach team

- Deliver water & 800 hot, fresh, nutritious meals created by our team of chefs daily to our houseless neighbors
- Provide critical outdoor survival supplies like tents, sleeping bags, sternos & clothing
- Distribute supplies & provide medical care focused on saving lives & preventing the spread of disease

FEED

The work of our culinary team lies at the intersection of hunger and preventing food waste.

- Ease hunger in our community with a team of professional chefs
- Save thousands of pounds of perfectly viable food from the landfill monthly & turn it into meals for our houseless community
- Partner with local farmers, restaurants and Dare to Care who are all committed to supporting our work with donations

HOUSE

Our care coordinators' work rests on the Housing First model – the belief that housing is a basic human right.

- Stabilize people indoors through hotel stays to assess their needs and create a plan of action
- Address the physical, mental & emotional issues that come with the experience of being unhoused
- Facilitate the process of finding housing from obtaining necessary documentation to assisting with move-in & everything in between
